Innovation and discoveries have always been the driving force behind global development. From the Industrial Revolution to the Digital Age, breakthroughs in various fields have transformed societies, improved living standards, and shaped the future of humanity. In the face of unprecedented global challenges, ranging from climate change to health crises, groundbreaking discoveries remain essential in driving sustainable progress. SHODH 2026, the 10th Annual Interdisciplinary Doctoral Conference, is dedicated to the theme Breakthrough Discoveries for Global Development. As we navigate an era of innovation-driven progress, this conference provides a unique opportunity to shape a future powered by scientific ingenuity and sustainable solutions. The conference offers an engaging platform for researchers from diverse fields to exchange insights, share experiences, and foster collaborative discussions that contribute to global development across multiple domains. By bringing together researchers, we strive to bridge the gap between research and real-world applications that foster global progress. The keynote addresses, insightful discussions, and presentations uncover latest innovations that are shaping industries, empowering societies, and addressing global challenges, to uplift the quality of life. By investing in research and promoting a culture of scientific exploration, we can create a future that is prosperous, inclusive, and resilient for all.

Complex global challenges often require interdisciplinary solutions. The conference paves the way for comprehensive strategies in which participants will gain insights into different domains, broadening their perspectives and enabling new approaches to problem-solving. The theme Breakthrough Discoveries for Global Development highlights the transformative power of innovation in addressing global challenges, driving progress in science, technology, humanities, and management for a better and sustainable future. With a strong emphasis on maximizing the benefits of interdisciplinary research, SHODH 2026 aims to showcase groundbreaking discoveries that drive global development, fostering innovation, collaboration, and sustainable solutions for a better future.
